Notes: It appears that Johannes de Colonia and Johannes Manthen printed Pars II of the Summa at Venice in 1477 and printed no other volumes of the Summa. This text is found in Liber III. Did Pars II of the Summa contain Liber III? If so, this leaf could be from the 1477 imprint. Shortly before his death, Antoninus Pierozzi (1389-1459), archbishop of Florence, wrote a very popular four-volume Summa Sacrae Theologiae, Iuris Pontifici et Caesarei treating of how man, soul and body intellect and will can, in all conditions to which he is subject, pass from vices to virtues. In the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries several abridged versions were also prepared for use as manuals for confessors and penitents. Antoninus' Summa was first printed in Venice in 1477.
